JANUARY 2021

Dr. Judi Fisch Named ICD District One Distinguished Service Award Winner for 2021

Dr. Judi Fisch of Vermont has been named the ICD District One Distinguished Service Award winner for 2021. Since there will be no Yankee luncheon this January Judi will be honored at our Luncheon in January of 2022. Upon hearing the news that she had been chosen for this award Dr. Fisch stated: "I was extremely honored and humbled when Eliot Paisner informed me I was the recipient of the District I ICD Distinguished Service Award. ICD is dear to my heart for its humanitarian initiatives and global collaboration of our profession. As a former District I deputy regent, I know that many dentists contribute tirelessly to the success of our profession, the healthcare we provide and the mission of ICD. I am incredibly grateful and privileged to receive this award."

Staying Positive in the Midst of COVID

ARE YOU KIDDING ME?

Dr. Robert Maguire

8 weeks; for others, it lasted a few months. During that time, we were bombarded with news alerts and information from the ADA, the CDC, and the WHO regarding Covid. Often, that information changed by the hour. Because of Covid, many of our existing protocols had to be changed, patient screenings now had to be done, and things like air filtration systems and PPE had to be purchased. Our expenses skyrocketed while our income plummeted. In addition, many of our patients had lost their jobs, and many, including our team members, had to juggle their work schedules or couldn't return to work because their children were now at home doing "remote

As Fellows in the ICD, we are leaders dedicated to maintaining high standards as we serve others and our profession. In addition, we care for the patients in our practices, and are the major producers of dental services. We also are tasked with managing our businesses and leading our teams. Essentially, we wear three hats. Often, doing the dentistry, or wearing the "producer hat," has been our first priority. Now, in the midst of the pandemic, I believe that the most important "hat" we need to wear is the "leadership hat." Let me explain why.

When Covid hit last March, dental offices were asked to shut down and only see emergency patients. The shutdown varied according to which state you lived in. For some, it lasted

REGENT'S LETTER 2020

How proud I am to be the USA-ICD District One Regent and be associated with so many heroes in dentistry. This is especially true during this pandemic which has tried us all. I have seen so many examples of my colleagues "stepping to the plate" to help us all get through the Covid crisis. From donating PPE to hospitals and health clinics to adding psychological support to others, you have shown the world how gritty we are.

A typical ICD Regent's year includes committee and Board meetings and participating in the annual Convocation Ceremony. This year is different in that all the ICD business was conducted on a virtual platform. We made it work! The inducted class of New Fellows in 2020 missed the splendor of an in-person Convocation but had the opportunity to be inducted "in absentia" and experience a virtual Convocation. Although not quite the same, the Board went to great lengths to provide a meaningful virtual Convocation. Congratulations to all inducted New Fellows who have earned the respect of their colleagues to be nominated and elected to the College. You are a part of the most outstanding honorary dental organization in the world. The recorded Convocation can be viewed on the ICD YouTube channel and the ICD Website.

It is the Board of Regents that conducts the business of the ICD but it is the District leadership who do the "boots-on-the-ground" work to help identify dentists who have demonstrated the criteria for Fellowship in the ICD and carry on with the day-to-day events. We are so fortunate to have this group of superstars: Deputy Regents Kevin Norige (CT), Barry Saltz (ME), Lisa Vouras (MA), Richard Vachon (NH), David Ward (RI), Richard Dickinson (VT); Vice Regent Jeffrey Dodge and Editor James Williamson. I would like to extend a thank you to them for their efforts, camaraderie, and friendship.

schooling.” In addition to all this, many dentists had a difficult time hiring new staff members due to a constricted applicant pool. Despite feeling overwhelmed and emotionally exhausted, we needed to press on. Is it possible to do this and still experience some semblance of positivity and joy? I believe the answer is “yes.” Here are a few things I’ve done and you can do too to stay positive and productive in the midst of this pandemic.

First, focus daily on what’s in front of you. According to Dale Carnegie, “living in day tight compartments” is the “best way to chase away the blues.” And as you choose to live “one day at a time,” you will want to stay current with the latest information regarding Covid, remembering that “knowledge is power.” As you lead your team and your patients, ask yourself, “What is the best decision I can make with what’s in front of me today?” In addition to obtaining the most current information, it’s important to truthfully share what you know with your patients and team. Keeping everyone informed and connected with the latest information is a great way to foster a feeling of well-being, a “we’re all in this together” attitude.

As you care for your team, make sure to check in with them more frequently than usual. As you do that, be a good listener and observe their body language and words to assess how they are doing mentally. In my opinion, having daily morning huddles and weekly team meetings are essential to keeping you and your team well connected. Remember, this pandemic is like a violent storm, tossing everyone around, filling them with fear, wondering if their ship is going to sink. Your job, as the leader of your practice, is to be their lighthouse, their guiding light, encouraging them daily. Be empathetic, listen to them more than ever, and reassure them that like the H1N1 pandemic of 1918 or the H2N2 virus of 1957, one day, this pandemic will end, and that together, not only will you survive, you will thrive as you look forward to better days ahead.

As I thought about the activities I do to help me stay positive, I came up with 30 items like: always be grateful, always say thank you, eat well, get exercise, collaborate with colleagues, read inspirational works, and pray. I encourage each of you to come up with your own list of positive activities. Also, try to limit the amount of news you read or watch on the television! You want to keep “negative stuff” out of your brain.

They say that something good always comes out of something bad. As I reflect on how the pandemic has positively changed my life, the biggest thing it has changed is my perception of life. It’s helped me see what’s most important and appreciate the “gifts” I’ve been given.

My priorities and my perceptions have changed for the better, helping me to enjoy each and every day regardless of the circumstances that come my way. I am an avid hiker and, in the past, I’ve often referred to myself as a “goal-oriented hiker,” taking few breaks, and rarely stopping to take pictures. Since Covid, I now stop and take pictures of the beautiful vistas. I now stop for a few minutes and listen to the silence or take a deep breath of the beautiful fragrance of the balsam trees. Honestly, I enjoy my hikes more than I ever have in the past. This positive change has not just helped me in my physical world; it’s also helped me relationally, with my family and with the people I encounter at the grocery store, for example. I’m finding that since the pandemic and my “new perception of life,” I am more understanding and have more patience with others. I’m less reactive to unkind words or bad behavior; I find that I am more loving and care more about the needs of others. I call these my “Covid blessings.”

Remember, you are the leader of your practice and your people need you. Remember, that in order to lead your patients and your team members well, you’ll need to take care of yourself. Fuel yourself both physically and spiritually to keep your light shining brightly. And lastly, remember that “beauty will rise from the ashes” and in due time, like the pandemics of the past, this one will come to an end. And one last bit of advice... If at the end of your day you need to relax, unwind, and watch TV... I recommend that you watch Animal Planet. I wish you all the very best.

Robert Maguire, DDS

must maintain a strong membership base by continuing to grow the ICD with new qualified Fellows who share our core values. Please think back to your induction and re-experience that “wow”; now consider nominating a deserving colleague for Fellowship.

District One continues to be an integral part of the College. Christine Benoit of Rhode Island, Past District Regent, has been appointed to serve as a Director of the ICD Foundation. Joseph Kenneally of Maine, Past President of the USA Section and Worldwide College is now the Worldwide Secretary General.

A victim of the pandemic is our District’s annual Awards Luncheon usually held on the Friday of Yankee Dental. This joyous event is a hallmark of the District, giving us a chance to greet new fellows and old friends and will not be held for the first time in 21 years. Please save the date for our next Awards Luncheon which will be held on January 28, 2022 when we recognize and honor our newest Distinguished Service Award recipient, Dr. Judi Fisch of Vermont.

Eliot Paisner,
Regent, District One

SPOTLIGHT ON SERVICE

Joseph G. Samartano, Jr., DDS — Rhode Island

Dr. Joseph G. Samartano

The first bullet point in the ICD USA Section states: “recognizes and promotes excellence in leadership with an emphasis on service.” As part of this issue, we would like to shine the spotlight on an ICD Fellow from Rhode Island – Joseph G. Samartano, DDS. Dr. Jeff Dodge suggested we tell you a little about this highly respected ICD Fellow and Rhode Island Dental Association member.

Joe was born in Meriden, CT, went to Grammar and High School in Providence, RI and stayed in RI to graduate from Providence College with a degree in Biology. He then went on to the Georgetown University School of Dentistry from which he received his DDS degree in 1967. Joe then went on to do an Internship at Buffalo General Hospital, followed by a Residency, both in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. He went on to practice from 1970 – 2005 in private practice as part of the Affiliates in Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery, Ltd. in the Providence area. Dr. Samartano spent most of his career closely aligned to Hospital Dentistry throughout Rhode Island but most particularly at Our Lady of Fatima Hospital and St. Joseph Health Center. At Our Lady of Fatima, he held about every position possible from staff to Chief, Division of Dentistry and of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery. He has also been extensively involved with both the Pediatric and AEGD residents. He has received numerous awards for his service, his leadership, and his civic involvement, from Hospitals, NERB, the Rhode Island ICD and the Rhode Island Dental Association.

Joe has announced his retirement from clinical practice at St. Joseph Health Center and Our Lady of Fatima Hospital on January 31, 2021. True to form though, Joe tells me “he hopes to continue with some limited administrative duties to help maintain a dental presence in the hospital environment.”

I asked Dr. Samartano a couple of questions:

Q I understand you have had a long career in Dentistry - what keeps you motivated and eager to keep giving back to the profession by continuing to serve those who need your services?

“With every success and accomplishment, I think of my dad. He instilled in me the virtues of hard work and service to others. He was the one to whom many turned to for help and advice. He was the “go to guy”. With every accolade I say “Dad, this one is for you”.

Q What have been the most satisfying parts of your career?

“I take great solace in knowing that I accomplished many of my life goals, that I was able to provide a comfortable home and lifestyle for my family, an education for my children that enabled them to achieve successful careers and to make my wife proud and happy because without her support and guidance I would not have been nearly as successful.”

Q What advice would you give young dentists today?

“As each class of Pediatric Dental Residents completes their education, I always tell them that Dentistry is a great profession. It allows for a unique personal satisfaction, a comfortable lifestyle and respect amongst your peers and the members of your community. However, all of that comes with an obligation...an obligation to give back to your profession, to your community, to your family and to the underserved and those less fortunate”.

I often reflect on the words of the College President who spoke at our 50th year reunion. As he raised his two index fingers, he said “One of these fingers represents today; the other represents the day that you die.” As he slowly brought his two fingers closer together, he continued, “What is most important, what counts more than anything else, is what you do between these two days”.

Dr. Samartano with Dr. Jeffrey Dodge

Dr. Samartano, congratulations on your “second retirement”. Thank you for your service to your patients, your hospital community to all in need, and a special thank you for giving us a wonderful example of “excellence in leadership with an emphasis on service”.

James J. Williamson,
Editor – ICD-USA District One

“This is not the year to get everything you want. This is the year to appreciate everything you have.”

As I write a few thoughts I am reminded that we are now well into our 9th month of the Pandemic, thankfully there is now an approved vaccine and I, as I am sure you are, am hoping that this light at the end of the tunnel will prove to be a turning point for our country. We are by nature a social society and normally the period after Thanksgiving is one filled with get-togethers, both large and small, with family, colleagues, friends, neighbors and such, but this year has been very different. I would ask you all to reach out to someone that you know is having a hard time, and make an effort to make their day just a little better; our values as Fellows in the ICD extend beyond the confines of dentistry.

Having participated in the Virtual Convocation on December 12, I would like to offer my sincere congratulations and to extend a virtual hand of fellowship to our new Fellows. It is a testament to the resolve of the ICD and our leadership that the "show must go on", and go on it did in our usual fashion. We all have faith that the day will come, sooner rather than later, when we can once again gather as a group in a more personal fashion and celebrate your many and varied accomplishments.

Much appreciation to Eliot for his leadership through these somewhat trying times, guiding us through the "new abnormal" with his regular Zoom meetings. To Jim for his timely and on point communications, thank you. Deputy regents Dave, Barry, Richard, Lisa, Rick and Kevin also deserve accolades as the drivers of the new fellow nomination process, which was ever changing and evolving this year, they all stayed the course and went with the flow.

I will leave you all with a quote from Matt Tenney, which I think sums things up very nicely, "A simple mantra for inspiring, effective, mindful leadership: cultivate piece of mind and go about doing good."

*In Fellowship,
Jeff Dodge,
Vice Regent, District One*

Dr. Jeff Dodge Honored

The Horace Wells Club, which is dedicated to preserving the legacy of Dr Horace Wells and his discovery of Nitrous oxide analgesia in the mid-1800s, recently elected two new members who are also ICD Fellows – Dr. Bruce Cha and Dr. Tam Le, who is the current president of the CT State Dental Association. At the annual meeting in December (held virtually), the presidential gavel was transferred from one ICD Fellow Dr. Carolyn Malon to another ICD Fellow and immediate past Deputy Regent of CT Dr. Thomas Brady.

On another note: the CT State Dental Association is planning on a virtual meeting in May, with planning underway for the ability to socially connect. I will keep you posted. The content of Christine's work on opiates may be very appropriately included there.

Happy New Year!

Deputy Regent - CT

MAINE NEW FELLOWS

C. Bradford Rand, DDS is in private practice in Brewer. Dr. Rand is a graduate of the University of Iowa College of Dentistry. Currently, Brad is the President of the Maine Dental Association. In 2013 Brad went on a dental mission trip to Guatemala and participates in several philanthropic activities including Sarah's House of Maine, Cancer Care of Maine, and Wishing Under the Stars. He serves as a Board member of his church.

Kyra Chadbourne, DDS is in private practice in Falmouth. She received her Bachelor of Science in Molecular, Cellular, Developmental Biology from Yale University and obtained her dental education at the University at Buffalo State University of New York where she also received her Advanced Education General Dentistry Certificate. Dr. Chadbourne serves on Boards of both the Maine Dental Association and Northeast Delta Dental. Kyra has also taught at several institutions and has yearly travels to Guatemala for dental outreach. Dr. Chadbourne participates with Donated Dental Services and Dentists Who Care for ME. An excellent dancer, she serves on the Board of "Dancing with the Dentists", a fun but competitive contest held in Maine periodically, with proceeds going to Maine dental charities.

Takashi Komabayashi, DDS received his dental degrees from Hiroshima University and the University of California San Francisco. Dr. Komabayashi practices endodontics in Portland and is Clinical Professor of Endodontics at the University of New England College of Dental Medicine. He is a scientific reviewer and/or sits on the advisory board of over a dozen national and international professional journals. Takashi also currently serves as Deputy Commander Clinical Operations in the US Army Dental Corps (Reserve) after initial enrollment as a captain in 2010.

Todd Peter Mellin, DMD practices Endodontics in Portland. He is currently volunteer clinical faculty at the Togus VA Center and has volunteered at the Penobscot Community Health Care Clinic. Dr. Mellin has served in the chairs of his component dental society and traveled yearly to Honduras for dental outreach from 1999-2001. He is a founder and current leader of the Portland Spear Study Club.

David C. Olivas, DDS received his DDS from the University of Texas Dental School San Antonio and is in private practice in Rockport. Prior to coming to Maine David was in private practice in Midland, Texas where he was a provider for the Junior League of Midland Dental Clinic, and also provided dental services in nursing homes. Once in Maine he served as Treasurer of the MDA and is a Consultant ADEX Board Examiner for the CDCA. Dr. Olivas has served the ADA tripartite in many capacities including Chair of the MDA PAC for nearly 2 decades and was an ADA Washington Grassroots member and Action Team Leader for 16 years.

Whitney R. Wignall, DMD received her DMD and Certificate in Pediatric Dentistry from the University of Florida. Dr. Wignall has served as a consultant regarding pediatric dental issues to the Maine Board of Dental Practice and her input and her office protocols served as the foundation for the Board as it rewrote the anesthesia guidelines for Sedation permits. Dr. Wignall helped the University of New England develop its pediatric dental program and serve as its co-director. Dr. Wignall is in private practice in Portland where she also volunteers with several humanitarian dental and non-dental programs.

Although this year was certainly stymied by the COVID-19 virus, we were still able to have a strong Fellowship class. Adding to our roster are Drs. Kyra Chadbourne, Takashi Komabayashi, Todd Mellin, David Olivas, Brad Rand, and Whitney Wignall. Congratulations to all!

As in years past we have several Fellows who serve in leadership positions in the Maine Dental Association (MDA), including current President David Kerr, Immediate Past President Brad Rand, Secretary Dean Tourigny, and Long-Term Delegate, Jonathan Shenkin. Lisa Howard is the current Treasurer of the Northeastern Society of Orthodontists.

The Maine Board of Dental Practice continues to have a busy year on many levels. It is an arduous task and a sincere thank you to all the board members with special recognition to our Fellows, Stephen Morse, Immediate Past Board Chair, and Mark Zajkowski, current Board Chair.

The University of New England College of Dental Medicine (CDM) shut down early in the pandemic as did clinics and private practices across the state. Since the Governor allowed dentists to practice again in the late spring, the CDM continues to see many underserved patients and plays a significant role in decreasing hospital emergency room visits. The CDM graduated its 4th class virtually this summer through well-orchestrated technology. Dean Jon Ryder, Associate Dean of Curriculum Integration and Analytics Nicole Kimmes, and several other faculty Fellows, Lionel "Pete" Vachon (GPL), Jay Beauchemin (GPL), Takashi Komabayashi, David Moyer, Barry Saltz, and Jeffrey Doss, continue to move the College forward along with other highly talented and skilled faculty and staff members. Katherine Heer participates on the UNE Board of Trustees.

Finally, I would like to recognize one of our own, a native of Biddeford, and newly appointed Secretary General of the ICD, Joseph Kenneally. Joe has been involved in organized dentistry since the start of his profession and took a leadership role as component President in 1985. I personally got to know Joe when I became part of the MDA Board in 1994. I am honored to call him a friend and mentor, someone who continually gives from the heart and has devoted his life to his profession and helping others.

Joe's eight-page CV does not do justice as one really has to know him to fully appreciate all his accomplishments. A very brief synopsis of his long list of accolades includes tenure as the ADA Vice President, multiple ADA Council positions several of them as Committee Chair, MDA President including nearly all officer positions along with multiple Chair Council positions, and of course the ICD where early on he became the State's Deputy Regent. He has held 17 other ICD regional and national positions culminating as International President in 2015 and then USA Section President in 2018. He has received numerous honors and awards. Joe has also published and presented countless times nationally and abroad.

Moreover, Joe has always given back both professionally and civically through community involvement. His philanthropic acts cover all realms, from serving on multiple civic boards, to coaching sports, volunteering at multiple dental clinics and programs, and of course, mentoring at all levels. He was even a road commissioner for several years.

Dr Kenneally truly is the gold standard to which the bar of excellence is set. Joe, keep up the great work in your new position with the ICD. We all wish you well along with continued success and happiness!

Barry C Saltz,
Deputy Regent-ME

INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF DENTISTS

Honoring the World's Leading Dentists Since 1920™

It has been a rather quiet year for ICD activities due to the pandemic. We did have five New Fellows inducted into the ICD at our virtual Convocation held in early December. Information on each of the new fellows is presented in this issue. In other news, new fellow Jeff Vachon received his Master Fellowship from the AGD this year. Jeff was also the Chair of the Task Force for re-opening of practices for the NH Dental Society. Fellow Joshua Osofsky is currently the President of the NHDS, and Rich Rosato continues as First District Trustee at the ADA.

We were also saddened to hear of the passing of fellow Don Johnson of Peterborough. Don was a mentor to so many in New Hampshire and was co-founder of the Association of Retiring Dentists with Neil Hiltunen.

NEWS FROM VERMONT

Our New Fellow Honored by the ADA

Dr. Rebekah Lucier-Pryles, of White River Junction, Vermont, is among the recipients of this year's 10 Under 10 awards, which recognizes new dentists who demonstrate excellence early in their careers. Dr. Lucier-Pryles co-founded Pulp Nonfiction Endodontics, an educational collaborative that provides evidence-based endodontic continuing education. She is also a postgraduate department assistant clinical professor at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine and teaches at the Harvard University School of Dental Medicine.

Looking to have a more direct impact on people's lives, Dr. Rebekah Lucier-Pryles found herself in pursuit of a career in dentistry after a conversation with a friend's parent. And after spending some time at their practice, Dr. Pryles soon began her journey into dental school and discovered endodontics to be, "a beautiful mix of emergency diagnostics and really collaborative care".

"I remember my second year at Tufts, sitting in an endodontics class, and just having a really good time," Dr. Pryles said. "I was engaged. I was interested. I just really enjoyed what I was doing clinically. And thinking to myself that I didn't realize work could be that enjoyable. And it was that moment that sent me down the path to endodontics. Just realizing that I could have fun."

And in 2013, after completing her postdoctoral program in endodontics at Tufts University, she committed herself to the field.

Since graduating, Dr. Pryles divides her time between private practice and teaching at both Tuft's post-graduate endodontics residency and Harvard University. In her practice that she co-owns with business partner, Dr. Brooke Blicher, she focuses on root canal therapy and endodontic treatment. Dr. Pryles stated that she is grateful to have found Dr. Blicher and that they have, "crafted a clinical practice that provides what I think is exceptional care to patients."

"Just to be able to work with her daily makes me incredibly proud of what we have done together," she added. "And I am excited to see what happens next."

Reflecting on meaningful partnerships, Dr. Pryles notes the relationship she has with the physicians at the local hospital.

"We have developed an inter-professional practice with the ENT practice and neurology because so many of the pain syndromes and sinus conditions that show up have a dental component," Dr. Pryles said. "We have educated the physicians on what we do and have been able to refer patients in need of service to them as well."

Another collaboration that Dr. Pryles is proud of is being a part of the Vermont Dental Society's COVID-19 response team along with their executive board.

"[The team] worked incredibly close together during the dental shutdown to communicate what was going on to membership, as well as helping them to get necessary PPE, and helping Vermont dentists respond to this challenging experience," she said. "I helped dentists from all over the state with this and feel that it is something that I'm really proud of. It's work that is continuing and it's just great to have people to rely on to do that."

As for how endodontics has changed her, Dr. Pryles said it has made her feel more confident in her clinical and diagnostic abilities.

"I have fallen more in love with dentistry and it has been confirmed as the right choice for me," she said, adding she has learned how people can be energized by their career rather than just being satisfied. "In both clinical practice, academics, and in organized dentistry, I enjoy all of the aspects. It's been a really fun surprise."

"I get to go into the office and help others feel better in a very real and meaningful way," she said on how she has affected the lives of her patients. "So whether it's providing that care for my patients or teaching the residents how to provide that care in a compassionate way, it's a really lovely feeling to have such a direct impact on somebody's life."

Along with her patients, Dr. Pryles has also found great joy in teaching.

"Teaching right out of school has been an incredible experience and the relationships that I have developed with the residents is something that I really value," she said. She advises fellow dental professionals to consider even part-time work in academics because it can have an incredible impact on dentistry and dental practitioners and help more patients as a result.

Looking into the future, Dr. Pryles said, "Professionally, I think the future holds continued clinical practice. It will be really interesting to see how part-time educators fit into dental education now and in the future, especially with what's going on with COVID. And I certainly hope to be a part of that change."

Outside of her professional life, Dr. Pryles is married and has two children, and says of their future, "I'm really excited to see my family grow, I have two small kids, a four-year-old and a nine-month-old and I am excited to see what they become in their lives."
